Junior Library Guild to Announce Spring 2010 Selections at ALA Midwinter Meeting

Junior Library Guild (JLG) announces their Spring 2010 JLG Selections at the American Library Association's Midwinter Meeting in Boston, January 16–19. Because JLG makes selections so far in advance of publication, the list is widely recognized as a valuable preview of the best books of the upcoming season, providing an early look at trends in publishing activity for children's and YA books.

"I am impressed with the variety and quality of graphic novels for younger readers," Junior Library Guild Editorial Director Susan Marston says. "More and more, children's publishers are exploring the creative possibilities of this format—and it's really paying off. We're seeing graphic novels with engaging storylines and compelling illustrations for the full range of ages now. I can't wait until these amazing books get into young readers' hands."

JLG will have copies of the list of upcoming JLG Selections available at booth #1464 at the ALA Midwinter Meeting in Boston, January 16-19, or for download at juniorlibraryguild.com on January 18.

About Junior Library Guild

Established in 1929, Junior Library Guild (JLG) independently reviews and selects children's and young adult literature prior to publication in order to provide the school and public library markets with the best new hardcover trade books. JLG's collection development service helps thousands of libraries across the country acquire the very best new-release hardcover books.
